Description

Knowledge Management is an organizational function that concerns itself with the capture, storage, and dissemination of the knowledge that is inherent in the organization by using software or a Processual tool to capture abilities of Knowledge Management System

Compete effectively, companies must use their existing knowledge and create knowledge that favorably positions them in chosen markets.

to accomplish this, companies must develop the ability to use prior knowledge to recognize the value of new information, assimilate it, and relate it to new knowledge and capabilities.

researchers have proposed capabilities for using knowledge management as intangible organizational resources for competitive knowledge management.
